Latest: Calvin Robinson Faces US Visa Review After Call to Drive Jews Out of America

A true story of faith under pressure. Read the first half below, then continue online.

KEY SPIRITUAL TAKEAWAY

"The Command Show"

(Transliterated from the original Hindi.)

They had gathered only to pray. When prayer itself becomes the target, faith is proved not by words but by staying.

The Story - Part One

Federal officials are reportedly reviewing the visa status of British-born clergyman Calvin Robinson, 41, after he said on the 13 November 2026 episode of "The Command Show" podcast that driving Jews out of the United States was the way to limit Jewish influence in American politics. The American Association of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists wrote on Friday 20 November to Rabbi Yehuda Kaploun, the State Department's special envoy to combat antisemitism, urging the State Department and the Department of Homeland Security to determine whether grounds exist under US law to revoke his visa. Christian Post reported the review on 24 November, and the Jerusalem Post and Ynet confirmed it the same day.

This is a review, not a revocation. Neither the State Department nor the Department of Homeland Security has announced any action against Robinson, and his visa has not been revoked. The State Department said only that it "continually reviews every valid visa". Anyone who says he is being deported is getting ahead of the facts.

Robinson is a former GB News presenter who moved to Michigan in 2024 to serve at St. Paul's Church in Grand Rapids. He is 41, British-born, and now managing director of Command Media, the company behind the podcast where the comments were made. On the 13 November episode, he compared proposals for the mass deportation of Muslims to the treatment of Jews, and said driving Jews out of America was the way to limit Jewish influence in politics.

The reaction was swift. The Jewish legal group's letter called the remarks antisemitic and asked the government to examine whether the law allows his visa to be taken away. Command Media, where Robinson is managing director, issued a formal apology for his comments on 20 November. Robinson himself told The Telegraph that "Christian lands should be governed by Christian people" and claimed First Amendment protection for what he said.

His board says critics took him out of context. That is thier position, and it is reported here as their position, not as a settled fact. The Jewish legal group takes the opposite view, calling the remarks antisemitic in its letter. Both sides are on the record, and the government has not yet said which way it leans.

The Turning Point - What Happens Next

The story reaches a life-changing moment that changes everything -- and what seemed like the end is only the middle. Two reports disagree on the numbers, and one question is left unanswered: will the CCTV footage ever come out? Read the full story to find out what happens next.

PERSONAL REFLECTION & DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. When gathering to pray carries a real cost, what keeps a community coming together anyway -- and what would keep you coming?

2. The pastor's sister shielded him with her own body and fainted under the blows. What does costly, self-giving love look like in your own family or church?

3. When justice is delayed and a complaint is withdrawn under threat, how do believers hold on to truth without giving in to fear -- or to hatred?
