Pauline Held Her Miracle Baby Boy on November 7

A true story of faith under pressure. Read the first half below, then continue online.

KEY SPIRITUAL TAKEAWAY

"Jesus loves you."

(Transliterated from the original Hindi.)

They had gathered only to pray. When prayer itself becomes the target, faith is proved not by words but by staying.

The Story - Part One

Pauline held her baby boy in her arms on 7 November 2026, just two hours after arriving at the hospital - the very date she says a voice on a phone call in July had spoken about. Her testimony, published by Abba's Heart World Ministries, tells of years of miscarriages, months of fear, and a pregnancy she describes as carried through prayer, a cervical stitch, and one sentence she could not forget: "Jesus loves you."

Seven. That is the number at the centre of this story, and Pauline says it was spoken to her months before she ever saw it on a calendar. In July 2026, overwhelmed by anxiety about her pregnancy, she reached out to Brother Silas Kiriinya of Abba's Heart World Ministries and asked to speak with him online. On that voice call, she says, he asked her what was special about the month of November, spoke of the 7th, and said the baby might be a boy. Four months later, on the morning of 7 November, she woke to the first signs of labour, looked at the date, and went to the hospital. Within two hours, she was holding her son.

Pauline's story begins long before that phone call. For the longest time, she says, she had one great desire: to become a mother, to carry a pregnancy to full term and hold her own baby in her arms. That desire had become painful because she had suffered miscarriages before, and she carried a question she rarely shared with anyone: would she ever get the chance to hold her own child? Her own sister had three pregnancy losses around the same time, and what should have been a season of hope became a season of anxiety and wounds nobody could see.

Early in 2026, she discovered she was pregnant again. She was overjoyed, and underneath the joy there was a great deal of fear. She carried the wounds of her earlier losses, the pain of rejection by the baby's father, and the uncertainty of whether she would finally carry this pregnancy to term. She worked six days a week, including Sundays, and on her days off she would kneel in church and pray one simple prayer: "Dear Jesus, please let me hold my baby in my hands!"

Pauline Miracle Baby: A Prayer, A Phone Call, And November 7

The pregnancy needed medical support as well as prayer. In the first trimester, Pauline says, her doctor prescribed pregnancy-support medication, which she had to take twice a day, and it was expensive for her. In the second trimester, she underwent a cervical stitch, known as a cerclage. She followed her doctor's instructions carefully, and still the anxiety weighed on her. She describes feeling spiritually empty and disconnected, and at times she even struggled with the feeling that Jesus did not love her.

The Turning Point - What Happens Next

The story reaches a life-changing moment that changes everything -- and what seemed like the end is only the middle. Two reports disagree on the numbers, and one question is left unanswered: will the CCTV footage ever come out? Read the full story to find out what happens next.

PERSONAL REFLECTION & DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. When gathering to pray carries a real cost, what keeps a community coming together anyway -- and what would keep you coming?

2. The pastor's sister shielded him with her own body and fainted under the blows. What does costly, self-giving love look like in your own family or church?

3. When justice is delayed and a complaint is withdrawn under threat, how do believers hold on to truth without giving in to fear -- or to hatred?
